Research methodology. The results are obtained through the application of the following methods: historical – in determining the chronology of world economic crises; genetically structured – in justifying the gnosiological and ontological foundations of the national economic crisis; dialectical – in developing priorities of post-crisis development of the Ukrainian economy.

Results. Specific features of the national economic crisis are analyzed, the economic and civilizational dimensions of its nature are determined.

It is proved that the ruling Western-oriented hierarchical and market-directed economy models should be replaced by fundamentally new model of global harmonized regulation, civilizational, regional and national dimensions of sustainable development.

Primary ways of overcoming Ukrainian crisis are substantiated: Ukrainian democracy, freedom and justice; dominance of internal social self-organization based on national and civilizational identity, transformation of oligarchic capitalism to the state social structure.

The imperative role of civil institutions in addressing the issues concerning the quality of education, health care, environmental conditions of life obtained by the citizens of Ukraine is discovered. It is proved that key active social position stimulates coordination of personal and social environmental and economic interests.

Novelty. Historical chronology and alternative theoretical - methodological approaches to the causes and nature of the global economic crisis are defined; priorities for post-crisis development of the national economy are developed.

Practical value. Ways of overcoming Ukraine's systemic crisis are offered, model of transformation of oligarchic capitalism into socialized state is presented, the formation mechanism of the successful overcoming the crisis instability combining unified action of public authorities, market structures and civil institutions to harmonize the relationship between man, society and nature conservation and restoration of the natural environment is formulated.
